

INVITATION: BIBLIOGRAPHIC DATABASE ON NEOTROPICAL ZOOARCHAEOLOGY

This invitation is addressed to researchers and students interested in the study of the diversity and evolution of human-animal interactions through time in the Neotropics—the biogeographic region ranging from central and southern Mexico to southern South America and adjacent islands—. The ICAZ Neotropical Zooarchaeology Working Group (NZWG) invites all interested parties to contribute their bibliographic references, and optionally also their papers, to the Bibliographic Database on Neotropical Zooarchaeology, hosted at the web site BoneCommons:

<http://www.alexandriaarchive.org/bonecommons/items/show/1773>.

This open-access database has been conceived to facilitate the spread of information on the issues addressed by different researchers and teams throughout the region, as well as to overcome the limitations derived from the often restricted distribution of regional publications.

To contribute this information you should just send an email:

- To: Pablo M. Fernández, pablomarcelofernand@gmail.com

- Subject: NZWG bibliographic database

- including:

1- a list of bibliographic references on zooarchaeology and/or taphonomy of Neotropical regions;

2- if any, the links to the online sites where the files corresponding to each reference are hosted, and

3- optionally, the papers themselves in case you want to include them in the open-access NZWG online bibliography within the BoneCommons site.

To participate in this bibliographic database it is not necessary to be a member of the ICAZ Neotropical Zooarchaeology Working Group, although we invite everybody to join, so as to promote communication among researchers and students interested in these subjects. To join the NZWG, please contact any of the Coordinators: Pablo M. Fernández, pfernand@retina.ar; Mariana Mondini, mmondini@filo.uba.ar; A. Sebastián Muñoz, amunoz@filo.uba.ar.

We are very grateful for sharing this invitation at your research and learning centers and the academic community.

Yours,

NZWG Coordinators
